

No Conflict With Anything I Do

God's face gradually fades from the infant's sight.
If this did not happen, you would never be able to recognize and converse with the things you do.

A soul's blindness most always increases as the body grows, and certain hungers set in, and one's attention is turned that way.

Now that you have traveled so far and have seen so much, what is it you most prize?

Desires, narrowed down, can do the same, decrease the weight you carry, and unveil the wonder in the present.

Just a single impetus, I now have.
Thus, there is no conflict with anything I do.

What kind of man would ask his breath the reason for its actions? Less demanding, less questioning.

.

God's face will gradually return to your perception. This work will help draw back the curtain from your eyes.

- Rumi w/edits by Lyn