

The Universal Form

Whatever you wish to see, can be seen in the body.
The universal form of the Divine can show you all.

You can not see it with your physical eyes.
Open your third eye and behold the mystic radiance.

Arjuna saw in Krishna's universal form unlimited mouths and unlimited eyes.
It was magnificent, all-expanding, unlimited.

If hundreds of thousands of suns rose up at once into the sky,
they might resemble the radiance of that form.

Arjuna saw the unlimited expansion of the universe,
in one place, but divided into many, many thousands.

His hairs were standing on end, he became bewildered and afraid.

The limited mind cannot keep balanced in such an experience,
and either dissolves and merges with that radiance,
or retreats back into itself.

- Bhagavad Gita, Chapter 11.